Europeans and Chinese Shot Down When the Kow Shing Was Sunk.
EADY WORK OF TORPEDOES.
Is Said that Fully 2,000 Must Have Gone Down with the Transport.

FRENCH WARSHIP SAVED A FEW.
English Merchants Offer Guns, Ships and Supplies to China.

(By Associated Press.)
HANGHAI, July 29.—The following is the latest Chinese version of the sinking of the transport Kow Shing, captured by China from the China Merchants' Trading and Steamship Company.
When the Kow Shing was overhauled by the Japanese cruiser, the latter sent out a small boat with a Japanese crew, to convey her to Japan. The Japanese boarded the Kow Shing and ordered her commander, Capt. Galsworthy, an Englishman, to proceed to Japan. Capt. Galsworthy refused to obey this order, and the Japanese withdrew to report to the commander of their cruiser.
The latter then opened fire upon the transport, using the machine guns mounted in the tops of the Japanese ships. This fire was so well directed that soon cleared the Kow Shing's decks. The cruiser then discharged two torpedoes at the transport, sinking it. The effect of the explosion of the torpedoes is said to have been terrific, blowing holes, large enough to pull a ship through, were torn in the steamer's side, and through these apertures the water poured, drowning between decks those who did not escape. According to the reports received here, no German passengers, who were on their way to Korea in order to settle up business affairs before the war broke out in earnest, jumped overboard when the transport began to sink, and succeeded in swimming to the Japanese ships. But in order to their appeals to be taken on board, and their announcement that they were non-combatants, the two Germans were shot by the Japanese marines. A number of Chinese also swam to the cruiser, and shared the fate. The Japanese absolutely refused to give quarter.
The transport sank near Shupoint land, for which place Capt. Galsworthy was steering, intending to beach the ship, under the fire of the cruiser, when the fatal torpedoes were discharged at the Kow Shing.
The French warship, the Lion, attracted by the shot by the sound of the alarm, rushed in to rescue some of the unfortunate Chinese soldiers, but all the soldiers are reported to have been killed on board the Kow Shing while resisting the fire of the Japanese, or else were drowned by the sinking of the ship.
The Japanese are said to have behaved with an utter disregard of the laws of civilized warfare by refusing to receive aboard the drowning people who swam to the cruiser from the sinking transport.
A large Chinese army has crossed the Yalu river frontier of Korea and is marching down the peninsula. A second army is being hastily equipped to follow the first army into Korea. No details have been received of the battle which is said to have taken place at Asan between the Chinese and Japanese forces. It is reported that several Chinese steamers have been captured and a number destroyed at Taku by Japanese cruisers. Steamers often wait a week at Taku before they are able to cross the river, and it is said that there was a fleet of Chinese steamships off Asan when they were surprised by the Japanese warships and either captured or sunk.
Torpedoes have now been placed in the Hwangshien Channel of the Yang-Tze River in order to compel vessels to pass within easy range of the Wooning forts.

ROASTED ON A ROOF.
Nicholas Ennis's Clothes Set on Fire by an Electric Wire.
Horrified Crowd Looked Helplessly On from the Street.
Finally Rescued by Dr. Hugh Kidder, of the Ophthalmic Hospital.

Michael Ennis, a tin roofer, of 200 East Fifty-fifth street, narrowly escaped being shocked and burned to death by contact with a live electric light wire this morning.
Ennis was repairing the roof over the private entrance to the New York Ophthalmic Hospital, at Twenty-third street and Third avenue, when suddenly the crowd of curious on-lookers saw his body stiffen out after a convulsive shudder. Smoke issued from his clothing at almost the same instant.
The wildest excitement was caused, and a crowd of at least one thousand quickly gathered and ran aimlessly about, shouting, gesticulating, but making no effort to rescue the man whose life was being rapidly sapped by the deadly current.
Dr. Hugh Kidder, who is connected with the hospital, threw up the window directly over the cornice roof to ascertain the cause for all the excitement. He had scarcely got his head out before his eyes, following the curling lines of smoke ascending from below, saw the body of Ennis, whose shirt was fairly ablaze, and the flesh on his chest and left arm was beginning to sizzle.
The doctor drew back from the window as if to call for some one to assist him in dragging the unconscious man from the network of wires.
Hugh Kelly, one of the men in the crowd below, divining the doctor's purpose, rushed up the steps, three at a time. He is a strapping young fellow, and in his excitement seemed to be possessed of giant strength.
Kelly reached the window and touched the rigid prostrate body of Ennis. He jerked his hand away with the rapidity of one who had unconsciously touched with his finger tips a red-hot iron.
Then Dr. Kidder reached down and took a firm hold of Ennis's collar. Kelly also took hold, and together they dragged the unconscious man through the window.
While this scene was being enacted some one had turned in the fire alarm, and before the apparatus arrived all was over, save the telling and retelling of the story by those who had witnessed it.
The spectators told an "Evening World" reporter that Ennis was first shocked to death and then almost immediately revived. He was badly shocked by touching Ennis's flesh that they were nearly rendered unconscious.
Both Kelly and Dr. Kidder felt slight shocks, but they suffered no ill effects. The ambulance which was called to take Ennis to the hospital that he thought he was dead for a week.
At one end of the little roof there is a switch and a network of wires. The current was turned on and one of the wires had been stripped of its insulation. Ennis, in leaning over, touched his throat with the wire and was instantly killed. It is believed that he must have received a shock of 500 or 600 volts, and that he suffered from the same. He had fallen to the sidewalk, but for a passing sign he would have been slipping off.
His left arm, his throat and breast were burnt, and his shirt was nearly destroyed.
The fireman who was sent to investigate the accident, refused to make any statement.

DONNELL WANTS HIS WATCH.
It Was Worth $400 and Was Equipped with Chinese.
Inspector McCaughlin has been asked to find a missing $400 gold watch, for which the police of the West Third Avenue station have hunted high and low for a week.
The watch is the property of Peter Donnell, who keeps a liquor-store on the southeast corner of Thirty-seventh street and Tenth avenue, within a stone's throw of Capt. Price's station-house.
Donnell, a man of about 40, has been the pride of the neighborhood. He was presented to Mr. Donnell, and being a very valuable and having a large "P. D." on the case, at the touch of a spring bell and the ring of a bell, he was taken to the back of the chair. The watch was in the vest.
About 9 o'clock he was called around the corner by a friend, and five minutes later, when he returned, the vest, watch and chair were gone. Donnell regarded the disappearance of the watch as a joke. He believed that his friends had taken it.
But as the days passed and the watch was not returned, and his friends protested they did not have it, Mr. Donnell was forced to the conclusion that some one had made off with it.
Donnell says he doesn't want to punish anybody, but that he wants the watch. He said he badly wanted it if it is only returned to him he will not ask a single question, but will pay a liberal reward and consider the matter a huge joke.

SMASHED WEINBERG'S SIGNS.
Rival Newsdealer Walsh Caught in the Act by a Policeman.
John Walsh, a newsdealer, at 254 West Forty-fourth street, was a prisoner in Yorkville Court this morning, charged with smashing the signs of another newsdealer, Samuel Weinberg, whose place is in the basement of 101 West Forty-second street.
Special Officer Lynch, of the West Forty-fourth street station, passed by Weinberg's basement last night and saw Walsh smashing the signs hung along the side of the basement stairway. He arrested Walsh and this morning the prisoner was held in $500 bail for trial.
There has been bad blood between Walsh and Weinberg for some time. Walsh formerly owned the place, but was driven out by Weinberg, who is now running it. Each has had the other's signs smashed.

The highest temperature recorded for any previous July 30 was in 1872, when the thermometer indicated 90 degrees. Last year's highest temperature for the corresponding day was 84 degrees.
New Yorkers have been granted somewhat of a respite of suffering from heat today. The record-breaking scorching demons of yesterday and the day before were not abroad this morning, and at 7 o'clock the thermometer registered 72 degrees, which was just five notches lower than the record for yesterday at the same hour.
Notwithstanding this comparatively low temperature, however, there was enough caloric standing around to make people very uncomfortable and to justify the fear that there would continue to be many prostrations and even deaths from heat.
Weather Prophet Elias Dunn seemed at peace with the whole world when he entered his office on the roof of the Equitable Building this morning.
"I understand," he said, "that the steamer Sault met an immense iceberg last Thursday in latitude 48.6 and longitude 48.13. This is something that the city authorities ought to take advantage of. They might have the berg hauled to a convenient spot in the bay and anchored there."
Somebody suggested that Street-Cleaning Commissioner Andrews might make the anchored iceberg available as a source of income to the city by taking out accowdies of millionaires and trying them up alongside its refreshing bulwarks.
Just as this frigid joke was finished, Mr. Dunn got a mysterious despatch from Charleston, S. C. It read as follows: "Besant Malay Johnson Irish."
Outsiders were at first disposed to regard it as an omen from some Fenian Society, and thought it boded ill to the city.
"That's the way we get our weather noticed," explained Mr. Dunn, relieving the anxiety of the many who were waiting for the temperature at Charleston is at present 82 degrees, with the barometer at 30.1 and the wind blowing from the south at a velocity of six miles an hour, and that during the night there was a trace of rain."
General Humidity had done so much in the last few days, he seemed to be exhausted, and his death was due to the fact that he had been registered only 74 per cent.
One of the most refreshing features of the day was the steady breeze from the southwest.
Asked what he became of the warm wave which had been blowing from the south since Friday night, Sergeant Dunn said it had gone back to the States.
There will be little change in the weather during the next thirty-six hours, according to the forecast of the United States Weather Bureau.
The coolest spot in the United States is in Idaho, where the mercury is said to be 50 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning.

Annie Freilich, ten months old, died suddenly at 1 o'clock this morning at her home, 101 West Forty-second street, after a short illness. She is supposed to have succumbed to heat.
John Cromwell, aged twenty-eight, of 101 West Forty-second street, died suddenly at his home at 11:30 o'clock this morning. It is supposed that his death was due to sunstroke.

ONE KILLED BY LIGHTNING.
Other Members of a Camping-Out Party Rendered Unconscious.
(By Associated Press.)
PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 30.—George R. Castle, aged thirty, a grocer, of this city, was instantly killed by lightning at Lake Onata last evening. The others of the party, Mrs. Castle, Charles Johnson, H. J. Wagner, Mrs. Samuel Williams and a nurse and Miss Lake Wagner, were rendered unconscious for an hour by a shock, and bolts struck and damaged the tenement-house at the junction. At Lenox, considerable damage was done to a large barn, and a small twenty yards wide through orchards and fields.
Did He Lead Tarzney's Assassins?
(By Associated Press.)
DENVER, July 30.—Joseph Wilson, who is believed to have been the leader of the party that tarred and feathered ex-Adj. Gen. Tarzney at Colorado Springs, has been arrested near Nevada, Mo. It is reported that he has made a confession.

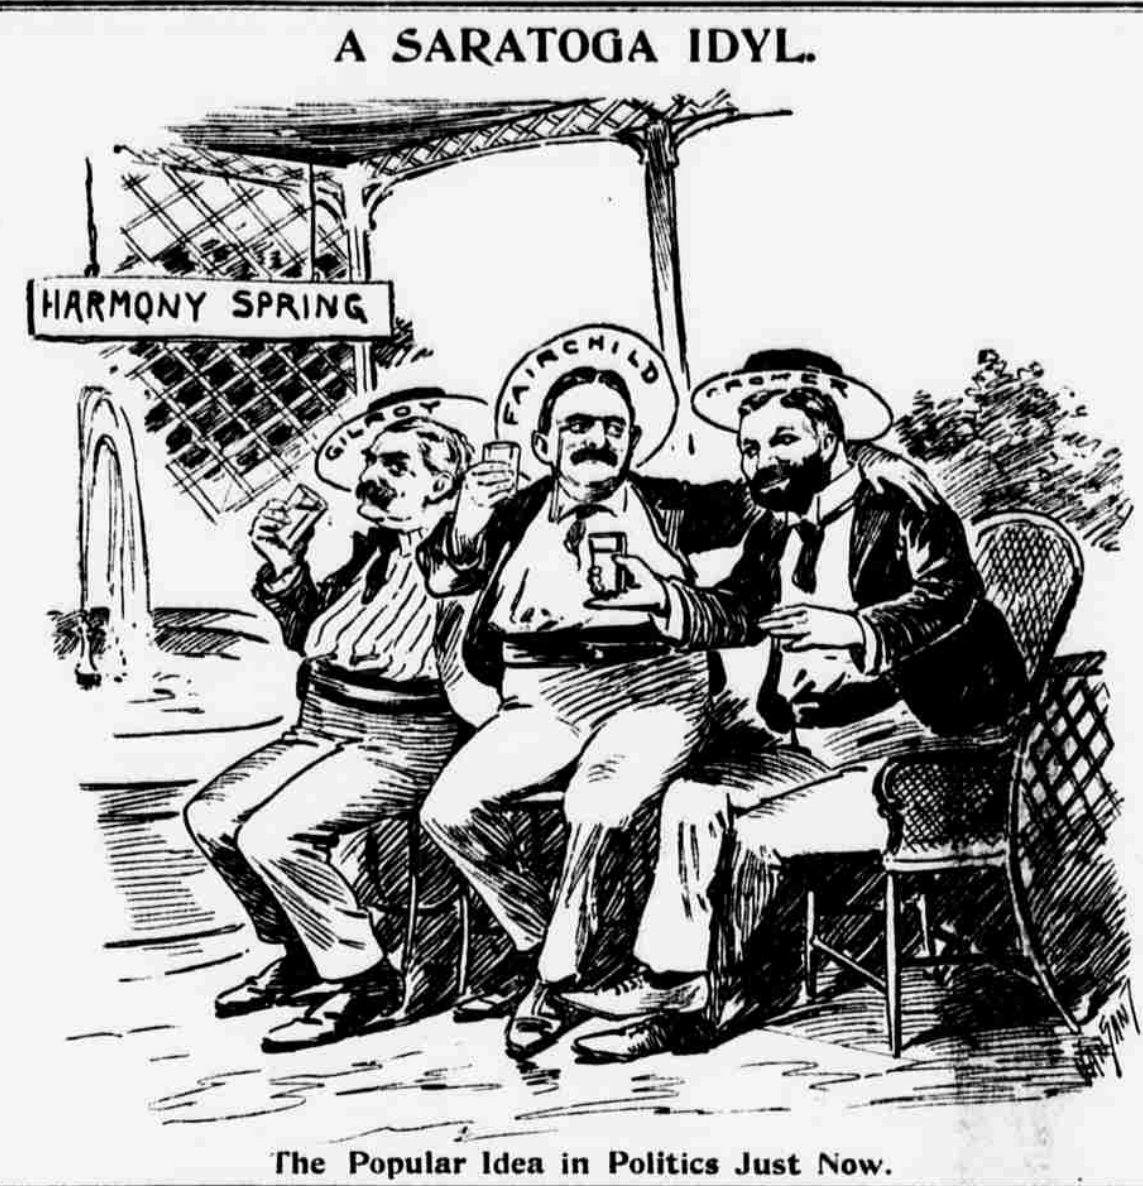

TO INDICT POLICEMEN.
True Bills Expected to Be Handed in by the Jury.
COMMISSIONERS' CASE SLATER
Ex-Capt. Doherty Likely to Tell His Story to John W. Goff To-Day.

WON'T BE THE SCAPEGOAT.
He Means to Get Satisfaction Out of the Men Who Have Disgraced Him.

The Grand Jury, it was said this morning, will probably be discharged Wednesday. It is expected that indictments will be returned against several policemen, but who the men are is a secret closely guarded by the attaches of the District-Attorney's office.
It can be depended upon, however, that the July Grand Jury will not consider the cases of any of the Police Commissioners. At the same time it is not improbable that the August Grand Jury will inquire into the charges made before the Lexow Committee against ex-Police Commissioner McLaughlin. After his case is disposed of his former colleagues will be taken up.
Before the day is over Lawyer John W. Goff, counsel for the Lexow Investigating Committee, will know the full extent of the evidence which, it is alleged, ex-Police Capt. Doherty proposes to give against high police officials and officers. The Captain is coming on from Atlantic Highlands. He will see his lawyer Louis J. Grant, first, and then it is part of the programme that he will see Mr. Goff and tell all he knows.
"The story is much bigger than people imagine," said Mr. Grant to an "Evening World" reporter. "We have in hand half a dozen affidavits showing that instead of Mr. Doherty paying the blackmail to Capt. Doherty it was paid to high officials over his head. All this, however, rests now with Mr. Doherty. It is a part of the programme that he will see Mr. Goff and tell all he knows."

HARRIGAN SENTENCED.
Nine Years and Six Months for Robbing His Sweetheart.
Luke Harrigan, the bartender, who was convicted of grand larceny in the first degree in Part I. of the Court of General Sessions last Friday, was this morning sentenced to nine years and six months in State Prison.
Judge Martine, in imposing the sentence, said:
"Harrigan, the complainant against you, Miss Clark, had by dint of hard work as a cook managed to lay by $1,500. You came along, and by exercising your handsomeness, warmed yourself into her affections to such an extent that she engaged to become your wife. More than that, she trusted you with her savings. In return for this confidence you went to London with her under a promise of marriage, and there deliberately deserted her while ill and unable to respect herself."
Judge Martine then named the sentence, Harrigan receiving it calmly.
The maximum penalty for the crime is ten years.

SENATE SUGGESTS TRUST INQUIRY.
(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 30.—Mr. Seymour, of the brokerage firm of Seymour, Bros. & Young, of New York, was again before the Senate Trust Investigating Committee today. He protested in his declaration to answer the questions of the Committee as to whether Senators had invested in sugar stocks through his firm, and did not add any information of any kind to the inquiry.

3 LOST THEIR LIVES. CAUCUS NOT GIVEN UP SHOT HIS PLAYMATE.
Fatal Accident to a Sailing Party
Near Hastings.
Beat Caught in Last Night's Thunder Squall and Upsel.
There Were Six Passengers, but Three Swam Safely to Shore.
But if a Deadlock is Certain It Will Be Held To-Morrow.

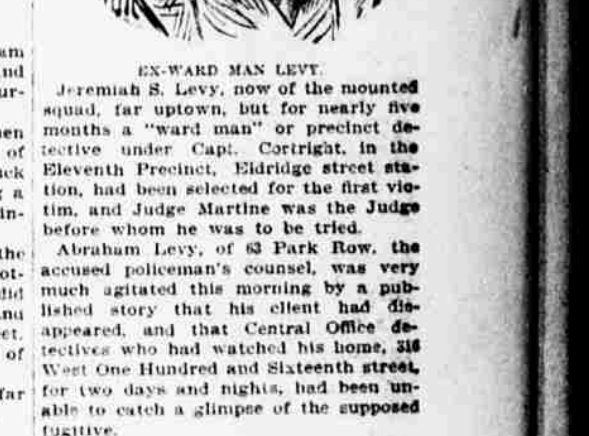

Joseph Woods, of 65 West End avenue, reported to the West Sixty-eighth street police at 1:10 this morning an accident to a sailboat, in which three lives are believed to have been lost.
Woods said that while sailing on the Hudson River, opposite Hastings, N. Y., last evening, with five other young men, their boat was caught in the sudden thunder squall that came up and was upset.
All the occupants were thrown into the water, while the boat quickly filled and sank.
Woods, John Schaeffer, nineteen, of 62 West End avenue, and Hugh Wood, twenty-one, of 65 West End avenue, succeeded in swimming safely to shore, but it is believed that George Clippert, twenty-one, of 290 West Sixty-seventh street; Henry Heblin, twenty, of 63 West End avenue, and Jacob Schmidt, twenty, of 65 West End avenue, have been drowned.
Boatmen from Tarrytown were today engaged in searching for the bodies of the supposed victims.
WERE THESE MEN DROWNED?
The Pickett and Martin Did Not Return After Last Night's Squall.
TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 30.—Thomas Pickett, aged forty-eight, his son, Edward Pickett, aged fifteen, and Commodore James Martin, aged twenty-eight, were reported missing after they were seen yesterday afternoon went out in a sailboat on the Hudson River at this place. They did not return to their homes last night. A search was instituted, but no trace could be found of them.
It is supposed that during the squall which blew up last night, the boat was upset and the men were drowned. A sharp lookout is being kept to see if any trace of the boat which the men went sailing can be discovered.
Martin, who was a single man, was highly respected in the village, as were also the Picketts.

THE NATIONAL ARBITRATORS.
(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 30.—Owing to the delay of Mr. Kernan in reaching Washington, the meeting of the Commission to investigate the causes of the recent railroad strike did not take place today. Mr. Kernan has wired Chairman Wright that he expects to be here tonight and the Commission will convene at 10 o'clock to-morrow.
False Pretence Charged.
Joseph Jewinsky was arrested last Saturday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Walgreen upon an order of arrest issued by Judge Pittsford of the City Court, in an action brought by Alexander Lerner to recover $120, the value of a diamond ring and pin which Lerner alleges the defendant secured from him by false pretenses on Oct. 4, 1893.
Jewinsky is charged with having obtained the ring and pin from Lerner by representing himself to be a member of the Russian Imperial Guard, and having obtained the ring and pin from Lerner by representing himself to be a member of the Russian Imperial Guard.

EX-WARD MAN LEVY ON DECK.
Appears in the General Sessions To-Day to Be Tried for Bribery.
ACCUSED BY CHARLES KRUMM.

Indictment Found on His Recent Testimony Before the Lexow Committee.
TWO JURORS SOON SECURED
But Counsel Expect It Will Take at Least Two Days to Obtain the Remainder.

The scene of the trials of accused police officers was transferred to-day from Police Headquarters to the brownstone Court-House. Trial before the Police Commissioners, for neglect of duty with penalty of dismissal from the force, and the loss of a fat salary with future pickings, gave place to trial before a Judge and jury on criminal charges.

EX-WARD MAN LEVY.
Jeremiah S. Levy, now of the mounted squad, far up town, but for nearly five months a "ward man" or precinct detective under Capt. Corbitt, in the Eleventh Precinct, Eldridge street station, had been selected for the first victim, and Judge Martine was the Judge before whom he was to be tried.
Abraham Levy, of 63 Park Row, the accused policeman's cousin, was very much agitated this morning by a published story that his client had disappeared from the city. Krumm's place in the city was taken by a man who was before him to obtain two important witnesses, he will be here at 10 o'clock to the minute.
These stories are calculated to injure the case of the defendant. Mr. Levy's bondsmen, George Goeling, of 115 Bowery, who had $2,000 worth of faith in his client, received this note a week ago, in which he was told that he was to be here at 10 o'clock to the minute.
Important—Friend George, you had better surround me, as it is now making arrangements to clear, as the case will be too hot. Yours, J. S. Levy.
Jeremiah S. Levy is charged with bribery. His accuser is Charles Krumm, the proprietor of one of the oldest saloons in the city. Krumm's place is in Chrystie street, just back of Miner's saloon. Krumm has had a long and successful career in the city, and has been successful in many of his ventures.
Krumm testified before the Lexow Committee that Levy reported against his place last January, and on his report Capt. Corbitt recommended that a renewal of his license. That after he had been found for a few days, Levy approached him, and told him he could have "protection" for $20 a week in cash. Krumm, a heavy drinker, took the bait, and had been paying Levy under the arrangement, paying $20 weekly to Levy, and $200 a month to the police. The penalty for bribery is ten years or less in State prison.
Calls Krumm a Chronic Kicker.
"I shall show the jury," said Lawyer Levy to-day, "that Krumm is a chronic kicker. He has had trouble with every one since he came to the city. He has been kicked by the police, by the courts, by the public, and by the press. He has been kicked by the police, by the courts, by the public, and by the press."
While the lawyer talked, Policeman Levy put in an appearance at Mr. Levy's office and announced his readiness for trial. He was wearing a dark suit and a white shirt, and was looking very much agitated.
Levy's old "partner," ex-Ward Man Livingston Hunt, was hanging about the
